

Covid-19 Updates @ 29 May 2020

The second and final phase of the de-confinement strategy was debated and finalized by the Cabinet earlier today and it was ultimately decided that the sanitary curfew will be lifted as from Midnight Saturday 30 May 2020. In a press conference held earlier today, the Prime Minister cautioned that the situation will be monitored closely and he also broached on the possibility of reinstating a curfew should there be a second wave of infection. A series of precautionary measures and guidelines have been issued by the government including the wearing of masks which will be compulsory in public spaces. The government is also encouraging employers to continue the use of their work-from-home facilities.

It will be recalled that the Government of Mauritius placed the country under a sanitary curfew since 20 March 2020, which has so far yielded remarkable results with no residents having been tested positive for the Covid-19 for more than 30 days now – except for 3 imported cases relating to Mauritians who were repatriated from India and France and who were placed in quarantine ever since their arrival on the island. In line with the Government's intention of easing the lockdown in a staggered fashion, the first phase was initiated on 15 May 2020 when certain economic activities were allowed to resume under strict sanitary guidelines and conditions.

ITL Work-from-Home Policy

At ITL, we are focused on delivering an unparalleled level of service to our valued clients whilst safeguarding the health and wellness of our personnel. As communicated previously, more than 90% of our active workforce has been connecting on our work-from-home infrastructure since the beginning of the lockdown in Mauritius which has ensured continuity in our service level.

In line with government's recommendations which encourage the use of work-from-home facilities, an assessment of our remote working experience over the past weeks has revealed greater productivity and better work-life balance for all our employees. ITL Management firmly believes that professional success is not reliant on location if the proper virtual workplace infrastructure has been implemented and it has therefore decided to extend the ITL work-from-home policy until further notice.

We will endeavor to keep our valued clients informed of the situation in Mauritius.

Please feel free to get in touch with your usual contact person for any immediate assistance that you may require. Any other queries may be addressed to info@intercontinentaltrust.com
